New Year's Eve is a magical evening with excitement in the air and endless romantic opportunities around every corner. As we soak in the holiday season and count down to New Year's Eve, there are many questions to answer: where to go, what to wear, and who to kiss when the clock strikes midnight.

When it comes to New Year's Eve parties, the bigger the better. We seek A-List entertainment, multiple rooms with various stages, playful party favors, fireworks, balloon drops and flowing champagne. When styling our New Year's Eve ensembles, the more sequins the better. This is one night when we can dress up in our black tie finest and impress the city with sparkly mini dresses, sharp bow ties, faux-fur coats and shiny top hats, if you dare. And then comes the final and most important concern: who will we select for that special midnight smooch? That, my friend, is your call. But just a little advice; if the answer doesn't automatically come to mind, you're probably better off going solo and seeking a new partner on the dance floor.

The best news? This year, New Year's Eve falls on Saturday, December 31st, giving us a whole weekend to rage. From the beach to the bay and the downtown city streets, the best 2012 New Year's Eve parties in San Diego are going down at the Hard Rock Hotel, FLUXX, Hilton Bayfront and Catamaran Resort. Then, keep the celebration going with after-hours New Year's Day parties at Side Bar and Voyeur. These holiday bashes are hooking you up with hosted bars, your favorite local DJs and a top secret lineup of celebrity hosts to be announced later this month.
