

October 12, 2011

Prince Harry: one woman's hero at swimming pool

Heather Tooley, Portland Pop Culture Examiner

October 12, 2011 - Like this? Subscribe to get instant updates.

Add a comment

Prince Harry is one woman's hero after another man threw her into a pool in San Diego last weekend, People reports. Harry, who's in the U.S. for part of his helicopter military training, was busy watching an England rugby match on TV at the rooftop pool of San Diego's Andaz Hotel when the incident happened.

Lindsay Swagerty, 23 was tossed full clothed into the pool when Prince Harry noticed her.

"Prince Harry was the first to notice me when I got out and he wrapped his towel around me to keep me warm," Swagerty said.

Britain's young royal princes sure know how to get a girl's attention. Lindsay kept the towel as a memento for what Harry did for her. She did meet up with several friends and have drinks with him later on.

"He is probably the most charming man I'll ever meet," the girl said.

That's not far from the truth, either.

Source: People